NO. 142—NINETY-NINTH YEAR — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, THURSDAY, MAY 30, 1957 — 10 CENTS DAILY 15 CENTS SUNDAY — 30 PAGES

Down by the seashore sifting sand in yesterday's heat was three-year-old Gordon McCallum, 201 Belmont Road. Gordon's father is also connected with the sea—he is PO R. D. McCallum.

Cooling off with a few hot licks on an ice cream cone was the most pleasant way 12-month-old Bonnie Reid, 608 Craigflower, found to beat yesterday's heat.—(Colonist photos by Jim Ryan.)

Three Ways To Beat Heat

Thoroughly enjoying in yesterday's heat what they would resent if it was inside, at night, just before bedtime, are two-year-old Chris Jeffery, 670 Pine, with the hose, and his seven-year-old brother, Ricky.

City Swelters

Scorcher Due If Wind's Right

A cool change for Victoria is in the wind today, but so is another hot day.

Maximum temperature forecast for today is 72, the same as the forecast for yesterday, when the mercury climbed up to 78.

And the deciding factor in today's weather will be the winds, as it was yesterday.

If winds blow across Victoria from the sea the temperatures will be mild, but if the wind comes from the north the temperature will rise.

Yesterday's high of 78 came at 2.30 p.m., while a north wind was blowing across the city. An hour later the wind had shifted to the southeast, off the sea, and the temperature dropped 10 degrees to 67.

Another hour later, at 4.30 p.m., the wind was again blowing from the north and the temperature rose to 75. At 5.30 p.m. it had dropped to 67 and continued dropping gradually. The sun shone brightly for almost 15 sweltering hours.

Yesterday's scorcher was the highest temperature recorded this year, but by no means a record for this time of the year. The record stands at some 85 degrees for the end of May.

Forecast for today is sunny and warm with light winds.

With most stores closing for the half day yesterday, thousands of hot and tired Victorians flocked to the beaches in an attempt to cool off.

Workers Sold To Russia

VIENNA (Reuters)—The independent Vienna newspaper Neuer Kurier reported Wednesday that Hungary has agreed to sell 50,000 unemployed workers to the Soviet Union at $100 a head, as forced labor.

British Red China Trade Bid Widens Anglo-American Rift

U.K. Determined To Go It Alone

PARIS (Reuters)—Rift in Anglo-American relations, born of the Suez incident, was widened yesterday when Britain indicated she will "go it alone" if necessary to increase her trade with Communist China.

Britain's move was bitterly opposed by the United States at the 15-nation talks here called to discuss possible slackening of controls. The talks are now at an impasse.

Conference sources say that Britain's determination will undermine the whole structure of anti-Peiping trade embargoes.

France, which proposed a gradual easing of controls, has sided with the U.S. against the British plan.

"If Britain acts as she has said she will," one French source said, "other countries will follow, for no trading nation can afford to allow Britain a monopoly in the Chinese market."

Sources close to the conference said Britain urging that trade embargoes against Communist China be dropped to the level of parallel embargoes against Russia and Eastern Europe. At present, the China trade embargo lists 207 items more than the Russian one.

No other nation has supported the British plan.

In Washington yesterday State Secretary Dulles refused comment but promised to make a statement today.

Britain's bombshell was considered certain to stir up a storm in Congress and throw a new roadblock in the path of President Eisenhower's embattled foreign aid program.

New French Hope

Crisis specialist Pierre Pflimin was offered another chance to become France's premier Wednesday night when he was invited by President Rene Coty to form a new government. Pflimin's conditional agreement depends on the outcome of talks with his Popular Republican Party colleagues. His previous attempts at forming cabinets have never been successful.

Liberals Ride On Bumper

KELOWNA—Premier Bennett is blissfully unaware that his car is being used to help the cause of local Liberal candidate Dr. Mel Butler.

Some unknown party booster stuck a "Vote Liberal" placard on the rear bumper.

So far the premier hasn't noticed it.

Bennett Blast Booked For Kamloops Tories

KELOWNA — Premier Bennett is expected to launch a two-fisted attack on the Conservatives Saturday when he speaks in Kamloops—the riding held by Tory Davie Fulton.

It was learned yesterday that Social Credit leaders are concerned by rumors that the movement is "taking it easy" in certain Tory strongholds. Premier Bennett therefore will make a special point of hitting out at the Conservatives in Kamloops.

It Was 'May Bennett Day'... ... But Gaglardi Stole Show

'Prairies Languish in Despair'

By PETER BRUTON

KELOWNA—Officially it was "May Bennett Day" in Kelowna yesterday, but Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi stole the show.

The minister, just back from an electioneering sweep through Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, was one of more than 300 Social Crediters who gathered at Premier Bennett's spacious home to pay homage to the Premier's wife.

Introduced to the assembled crowd, Mr. Gaglardi launched into a boisterous denunciation of other political parties quicker than you could say "The Malahat."

All across Canada, he said, and particularly in the Prairies, "the country is languishing in a state of despair" as a result of the federal Liberal administration.

"The Social Credit organization is the only organization truly representative of all the people in all walks of life," he thundered. "The Liberals have always favored the rich against the working class and the middle class."

MRS. BENNETT
... Homage paid

The Conservatives were the same—as a matter of fact the Liberals and the Conservatives were one party anyway—he added.

"Conservatives are ashamed of Conservatism." Mr. Gaglardi told the applauding audience. "They say, 'Vote for a Diefenbaker government,' not 'Vote for a Conservative government.' And you know why? There's no fire in the name Progressive Conservative. It should be Regressive Conservative."

During his eastern tour, he continued, he had seen how unhappy people were as a result of the Liberals, especially on the Prairies.

"That outfit in Ottawa never had an idea on how to solve the problem of surplus wheat in the last 50 years, and they won't solve it until Social Credit is sent down there to show them how," said the minister.

P. A. GAGLARDI
... Speech made

He hit out at the $100,000,000 grant for culture and the fact that old-age pensioners had been given only a $6-a-month increase.

"Maybe it was done so these people could learn how to starve gracefully and with finesse," said the minister. "I think they should take Uncle Louis and C. D. Howe and pension them off on $46 a month and turn 'em out to pasture, because that's where they belong."

What Canada needed was young men with "vision, vigor and vitality" as could be found in Social Credit, he declared.

The May Bennett Day celebration was the second annual event to be held and was attended by Social Crediters from a majority of ridings in B.C.

The visitors milled around the premier's seven-acre property drinking tea, speaking to Mrs. Bennett, or listening to the speeches.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

ONE day a swimmer will be hit and killed by a speedboat. And when that happens, the authorities may at last do something to curb the dangerous nuisance of high-powered craft on small waters.

Speedboats are now cheap enough that men and boys of moderate means can afford them. More power to the boatmen. They are entitled to their fun. But non-boatmen deserve peace and safety, too. On both counts, the power-boat squadron is winning the battle of the outboards, and everyone else is losing.

On many small lakes and inlets, motor boats are making life hideous for people who have waterside homes.

I know about this first-hand, because I live on Langford Lake. Since the speedboat boys moved in, we have had a racetrack in the front yard.

* * *

Langford is a small lake, heavily built up with houses for about half its circumference and lined by woods and bog for the other half. The power boats are a nuisance to the residents and a hazard to wildlife.

Last year, some speed maniacs showed their contempt for lake residents by deliberately roaring around the edges of the lake and kicking up an intolerable noise and wash. More than once, a power-boat man was observed deliberately trying to run down waterfowl.

This year the speedboat crowd have better manners. Most of the time, they keep farther away from the shore. Lake dwellers are thankful for that. But many of us would be even more thankful if the boat people would go and play somewhere else.

Fishermen and swimmers are in constant fear of being interrupted by speedboats roaring past. Recently a power boat ran across the line of a man who was fishing in daylight, and got tangled in it.

More than once, power boats have been observed running in dusk or darkness.

In a small lake infested with speedboats, a swimmer may be in danger of his life. People sometimes like to swim out 50 or 100 yards from shore. A speedboat man churning along in a cloud of spray might not see a swimmer's head until it was too late to change course.

Must the authorities wait for someone to have his head chopped off before they take action?

* * *

I cite Langford Lake as an example, because I happen to live on it, and I confess that I have a selfish interest in the matter. But there are other lakes affected in the same way. The problem is likely to become more acute as the power-boat fleets grow.

There is a place for speedboats, but a small residential lake isn't it.

Cars are confined to highways, and ordered to observe speed limits. Airplanes are restricted by many rules about heights and zones. Why should speedboats be allowed to make life miserable for citizens on lakes and inlets? The authorities would be wise to set aside some areas of sea and large lakes as a speedboat playground, and rule small, populated waters out of bounds.

Political Roundup

Liberals in a Panic Declares Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker said Wednesday the Liberals have become panic-stricken about their chances in the June 10 federal election.

As a result, the government is taking some of the action for which Canadians have been waiting for 22 years, he said.

He said two moves by the government within the last 24 hours reflected what he described as the Liberals' fear that public protest will sweep them out of office.

The ban on imports of cheddar cheese and the move to provide Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation Loans for housing in the new Northern Ontario mining community of Elliot Lake are the work of desperate men who see their power slipping away, he said.

* * *

HAMILTON (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson Wednesday night denied that Liberals are "running scared" in the June 10 election campaign.

"No, we're not running scared," Mr. Pearson said in a CBC television broadcast. "We are running strong."

Playing Politics

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP)—John Diefenbaker said Wednesday night Prime Minister St. Laurent is playing politics with the federal civil service.

He criticized Mr. St. Laurent for indicating in a recent speech that there would be a pay increase for federal employees after the June 10 election.

OTTAWA (BUP)—Thousands of Canadian children die needlessly because the country lacks an all-embracing health plan, says CCF leader M. J. Coldwell.

He said he was "very shocked" to find that United Nations records showed that in a dozen countries a new-born child has a better chance to live than one born in Canada, he said.

"In virtually all Western European countries the infant mortality rate is lower than in Canada," he said. "This is indeed a shocking thing."

School Grant

ANNAPOLIS ROYAL, N.S. (CP) — George Nowlan, Progressive Conservative candidate, said here Wednesday night his party will make a direct payment to the provinces for education if it is elected June 10.

"They say we get $5 back from the federal treasury for every $1 they collect here. It may be so but I don't see how they can tell."

He said Alberta, "which is not a have-not province, not by a long shot," got $1,800,000 more than Nova Scotia in equalization payments last year—more than New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island together.

"This is going on while the federal treasury in Ottawa is swelling over with a $500,000,000 surplus. And yet they say they can't give us $10,000,000 more.

Groundswell

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker said Wednesday night there is a great groundswell of protest in Canada against things done and left undone by the Liberal government.

"It is a protest against arrogant secrecy in affairs of state, against the power lust of a few men, against distress and want in the midst of plenty, against callousness toward the needs of people in distress, against the piling on of taxes for the sake of piling up power," he said.

Complete Finality

'Medea' Captures Power of Tragedy

By BERT BINNY

The power and complete finality of classical Greek tragedy was captured and faithfully reproduced in last night's production by North Saanich High School of Euripides' "Medea."

The version was that of Robinson Jeffers, the same as used by John Gielgud and Judith Anderson in New York. It is termed a "free translation"; a slight protest is due against the occasional too arrant colloquialism.

The play belong to Katherine Robertson, in a magnificent portrayal of Medea, and Gil Bunch, for superb production.

The lighting and staging were truly excellent, always subtly utilized to the highest advantage.

Deanna Huntley as the nurse was impressive. Lorna Bosher, Sheila Greenhill and Joan Bath as the women of Corinth were chiefly effective in contributing to the form and shape of the production.

Christopher Morley as Jason excelled particularly in the second act. Wallace du Temple as Creon was entirely adequate and Dean Morgan as Aegeus, though lacking somewhat in strength, nonetheless painted a true picture.

The play will be repeated tonight at 8 o'clock.

Fishermen Help

About 70 pounds of fresh-caught cod was given to senior citizens living in Glebe Terrace Monday as part of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association "fishing for charity" plan. Members and other fishermen donate all or part of their catches to the surplus food stall and old-age pensioners.

Two teen-agers, Ronald Tidman and Gordon Clemett, caught much of the cod, according to C. J. Rose, chairman.

Vancouver Hoodlums Behave Like Animals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Businessmen on Vancouver's South Granville Street say hoodlums are behaving "like animals" on the sidewalk and causing decent people to avoid the area.

The complaint was voiced by businessmen between Robson and Nelson Streets, which intersect Granville cutting off a two-block area.

They said "hoodlums, thugs, and dope addicts" prowl the streets there.

"They're like animals," said one man. "They shout curses, they spit on the sidewalks and cars and bully people. A decent person won't walk into these two blocks alone."

None of the businessmen who made complaints would give their names for fear of reprisals.

Ottawa's Bad Guesses

Millions Down Drain And Still No Missiles

OTTAWA (CP)—Government errors and an apparent lack of confidence in the ability of Canadian scientists and engineers are being blamed for the fact that, after seven years' research, the RCAF now has no air-to-air guided missiles.

National defence department scientists contend the government made its biggest error when it scrapped more than $20,000,000 worth of research on a Canadian missile project known as the Velvet Glove in favor of an American-developed missile.

Officials forecast at the time that the American weapon—the Sparrow—would be in production in Canada by 1958.

TEST MODELS ONLY

Those same officials now disclose that only test models of the Sparrow are in production so far—and only in the U.S.

Scientists claim the Velvet Glove could have continued successfully with the incorporation of the Sparrow's "seeking" device. The American project has no greater range than the Velvet Glove, though it is rated a more versatile weapon.

Defence Production Minister Howe announced a year ago that the Sparrow would be fitted to Canada's CF-100 jet interceptor.

An RCAF spokesman now says, however, that the sparrow may not be used on the CF-100. It may be employed only on the CF-105, not yet test flown and not expected to be in squadron service until 1960 or 1961.

Official justification of the scrapping of Velvet Glove was that although it came up to original specifications set by the RCAF, its performance was not considered good enough to combat Russia's best bombers.

But it was admitted that "several" components of the Velvet Glove are superior to their counterparts in the Sparrow.

'Undesirable' Brand Threatens Africans

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Native Affairs Minister Henrik Verwoerd asked Parliament Wednesday for the power to deport any African not born in South Africa whom he judges to be undesirable.

He introduced in the House of Assembly a native laws amendment bill which would give the all-white government more control over the lives of natives.

How many of the Africans were not born in South African territory and thus subject to deportation under the new bill is not known. However, the number is believed large on a continent where political boundaries often cross tribal lines.

Nurse Lack Serious Says New CMA Boss

SASKATOON (CP) — Dr. Morley Young, president-elect of the Canadian Medical Association, said here Wednesday the shortage of nurses in Canadian hospitals "is serious."

Dr. Young of Lamont, Alta., told the 12th Western Canada Institute for Hospital directors and Trustees that hospitals would be in a difficult position if it were not for the many thousands of married women assisting in the nursing field.

The nursing shortage could be attributed, in part, to the increase in the number of persons receiving hospital treatment and the shorter work week.

"The quantity element of nurses may be less, but the quality element must be maintained or bettered."

Constant vigilance must be maintained "in these days of nurses aides, ward aides and aides to other aides," Dr. Young said. "We must be careful not to lose sight of the patient."

Prepaid medical services, he added, mean that a high percentage of the population was protected against the financial demands of sickness.

New Contract Gives Nurses Wage Boosts

Some 330 members of the Registered Nurses' Association of B.C. working at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals have been granted wage increases, George Masters, administrator of Jubilee Hospital said last night.

Increases were granted following annual negotiations between the association and the hospitals, Mr. Masters said. A yearly contract was signed.

Base rate for nurses was increased by $17.50 a month from $227.50 to $245. The increase is the first in some 30 months.

The association is negotiating at present with the board of the Gorge Road Hospital.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs Dan Gerber (MOTHER OF 3)

Well begun . . . half done, an old saying that applies to modern baby feeding. Doctors add a variety of foods at an early age these days, partly because of the increased nutritive value variety affords — but also because they know that early acceptance of variety paves the way for future good eating habits.

* * *

As a mother, it should be reassuring to know that when you start your baby on Gerber, you can depend on the same brand throughout babyhood. Gerber has a type and variety of food for every baby need. Over 75 varieties of Cereals, Strained and Junior Foods, including Meats.

Spare that creeper. With summer in the offing, the floor makes a cool play area for creepers. But before you let your little wanderluster explore on all fours, be sure to safety proof his travelling grounds.

1. Rockers should be moved out of harm's way. Lamp cords should be hidden, outlets guarded. Little hands are daring, but not deft.
2. Floors should be eagle-eyed for stick pins, hairpins or small buttons. Creepers make a beeline for bright objects.

Delicious, nutritious addition to baby's diet—Gerber Strained Egg Yolks. A creamy, custard-like texture and a delicate, fresh-egg flavor make Gerber Egg Yolks particularly palatable to baby. Nourishing, too, because they're rich in iron and vitamin A and a good supplementary source of protein. Important point: Gerber Egg Yolks are heat-sterilized for baby's protection.

Topping attraction. Gerber Egg Yolks give added zest to Gerber Strained Garden Vegetables. Nice touch in a cereal dish, too. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

The Swiftsure Fleet Comes In

THE Swiftsure Race fleet of more than a score of fast racing yachts—many of them world famous—will assemble in Victoria's Inner Harbor this evening in readiness for the long and gruelling race to the lightship and back; and the festivities to welcome their arrival here are another of those things which remind us of Victoria's peculiar advantages. Nowhere else on the Pacific Coast north of California can people see a spectacle like this every year—or any year.

The fleet may represent more than a million dollars in hard cash; but far more than that it represents the efforts of designers and builders, of riggers and sailmakers to produce slender ships that can take any kind of weather and win races under the power of wind alone; and of amateur skippers and crew members—doctors, lawyers, business men, office workers and tradesmen in ordinary life—to get the best out of them regardless of what the gods of weather may hurl their way. The Swiftsure is a race strictly for amateurs and those who love sailing for its own sake. Success in it reaches all the way back from the sea-swept foredeck in pitch darkness to the drafting board where, perhaps many years before, an architect began to draw the lines of a ship that could win with the help of a good skipper and crew.

These aspects of ocean yacht racing may not be in the minds of all those who go down to the Causeway this evening to view the fleet and hear the Mayor's welcome, but even the most inexperienced will be able to appreciate the beauty of line and air of efficiency that surrounds the ships that will be tacking up to the starting line off Brotchie Ledge at 9.30 a.m. tomorrow.

As the starting and finishing point of this international race Victoria enjoys incomparable advantages which the city has now begun to recognize. The natural amphitheatre of the Inner Harbor gives residents and visitors a splendid opportunity to inspect the fleet at close quarters and is a perfect setting for the ceremonies the night before the race. The waterfront from Beacon Hill Park to the breakwater is a grandstand from which to watch the start and, daylight permitting, spectators there have a magnificent view of the last leg of the course all the way from Race Rocks to the harbor entrance, where many a spectacular finish has been seen in past years. The Swiftsure Race has lately taken a position among Victoria's major annual events, where it well deserves to be on every count.

"Anybody think this road is too steep?"

No Alternative

SPEAKING in Montreal to a convention of what are called "correction" experts a Kingston psychiatrist declared that prisons neither rehabilitate the criminal nor deter crime. They must do in some instances but in any event what is the alternative — to open the penitentiary doors and let the inmates go free? It would almost seem so from the further remarks of the doctor in question.

His analysis of human behavior was directed more at people outside prisons than those inside them. Inferentially, at least he blamed the former more than the latter. He said: "We imprison him who does what we would not allow ourselves to do, but we feel guilty when he does it. We insist upon his removal in part to allay our own guilt."

That is so much psychiatric mumbo-jumbo. Decent law-abiding citizens do not feel guilty when some evil-doer breaks the law, and have no reason to feel that way. Prisons exist because there is no other known method of keeping out of circulation individuals who are a menace to society. If rehabilitative measures fail to reform criminals and police courts do not keep their numbers down — a viewpoint that can be challenged—that is no argument for letting bad persons run amuck without hindrance.

Penal authorities and societies devoted to the reformation of evil-doers do much good work in saving many a person from a life of crime. That can scarcely be gainsaid. There is, however, and history would indicate there always has been, a hard core of incorrigibles who must be punished for their misdeeds. In no other way can society be made safe against them, and psychiatry is not much help if it merely indicts the public for attempting to secure its own protection.

Most people regret the need for prisons and applaud whatever steps can be taken to divert wrongdoers to a new and better life. Nothing is gained by being woolly-minded on the subject, however. Prisons exist because of the demands of society, remarked the psychiatrist in question and in this at least he is right. These demands are necessary, and the primary consideration must be the security of society. Unfortunate though it may be this cannot be effected without prisons.

The Vancouver Herald

FORMAL decision by the Thomson chain of newspapers to end publication of The Herald, Vancouver, at mid-June for economic reasons will take out of existence a colorful, independent journal on which some well-known Canadian newspapermen had their start. As The Star, the News-Herald and latterly The Herald, the Vancouver morning publication passed through several hands and faced many vicissitudes since the days of the "hungry thirties." The loyalty of its professional and trades staffs saw the original journal through some very hard times in the between-wars period. At one time it was owned outright by its newsroom staff, which worked without wages to maintain their ideal.

British Columbia newspapermen will recall the sturdy band of writers who in the foundation period of the paper would not accept defeat. They persevered in spite of every obstacle until conditions improved. Now in different times, but for basically the same economic reasons in the squeeze between fast-rising costs and slower-paced earnings, the successor to the original journal is approaching the end of its days. Among writers, The Star, the News-Herald and The Herald in succession made many friends. Not a few of the oldtime staff members have risen since to high executive posts in Canadian journalism.

The disappearance of The Herald's masthead on June 15 will be sincerely regretted throughout British Columbia, and by none more so than by those who have known the gallant efforts made through two and a half decades to found an independent morning daily in Vancouver. It will be with profound regret that British Columbia newspapermen will watch the passing of The Herald, as possibly the last of a series of independent journals that began at the opening of this century with The Morning Advertiser, one of the pioneers to test a difficult field.

Interpreting the News

UNESCO Studies Crowding

By THOMAS R. HENRY

Science Editor, North American Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON—Millions of square miles of the earth's surface are in the hot, wet, often densely forested tropics.

These regions offer almost as much a problem as the vast Saharas for human habitation and man has not yet learned to adjust himself to them. Some of the areas are almost uninhabited. Others are the most densely populated regions of the world, but with extremely low standards of living.

* * *

The areas have a good deal in common. Temperatures during the coldest months do not fall below 64 degrees Fahrenheit and rainfall is at least 27.5 inches annually. Plans for extensive research into the pressing problems of tropical living now are being projected by the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization of the United Nations. These were formulated at recent meetings at Kandy, the ancient capital of Ceylon.

The significance of the problems were emphasized with facts. In 12,000,000 square miles of the tropical areas of the Americas, Africa, Australia and New Guinea the population now is less than 40 persons per square mile. In the Ganges valley, on the other hand, it is about 1,200 per square mile, and in other parts of India and certain districts in Java it approaches 4,000 per square mile.

* * *

In these densely populated areas living standards are distressfully low. Heavy rains wash the humidity from the soil. Because of rapid bacterial decay little humus is formed and there is a high prevalence of bacterial and insect-carried diseases.

A permanent advisory committee on humid tropics research has been formed, whose headquarters will be set up at the Institute for Tropical Study and Research at Abidjan on the Ivory Coast of French West Africa.

* * *

Nineteen recommendations were laid before the Kandy meeting, calling, among other things, for classification of tropical soils, the role of organic matter and nitrogen in these soils, and establishments of fellowships for tropical research.

The Kandy meeting recognized rice culture as the most important field of tropical agriculture because of the high food value of the crop, and the fact that flooded fields do not allow the nutritive elements of the soil to be washed away.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A WRITER in the London Free Press (Ontario) says he became converted to the bagpipe when he watched a hundred pipers skirl the esplanade at Edinburgh Castle. It made the hair stand on the nape of his neck.

When I watched Wee Geordie in his Black Watch kilt march across the silver screen the other night, although he was Big Geordie by that time, I thought I detected some movement of the hair on the neck of the man in front of me. Perhaps not; or perhaps it was a gust as the theatre door opened to let a late-comer in, and not Wee Geordie, that was responsible.

Geordie didn't play the bagpipe, anyway, he threw a hammer—and how—although he was big enough and with the proper trimmings would have been majestic enough to be a pipe-major. The Free Press man says he knows no breed of musician who looks so supremely sure of himself as a pipe-major in full-dress regalia.

* * *

And why should he not, being a legendary figure everyone keeps copying—Indians, and Pakistanis, and the R.C.A.F., and goodness knows who.

The eastern writer would say, I suppose, that this is perfectly proper, that the bagpipe is a universal instrument. Why, he even repeats that old canard about Nero piping and not fiddling while Rome burned. I hope he's not trying to trace cause and effect.

It's true, of course, that the bagpipe is an ancient gift to the world. If your own hair has never stood on end as its exquisite strains shivered your spine, do not deny this nevertheless. Instead you should, perhaps, see a psychiatrist. He would unlock the inside door that keeps you bereft.

'Tit true, all right, that in their different ways the Egyptians, the Babylonians, the Assyrians, the Chaldeans, et al, played a kind of bagpipe, and that, as the Free Press man says, having become a convert, if you poke fun at the pipes—thereby exposing your isolation from sweet music—you are indicting all these ancient peoples.

* * *

But he misses something. The bagpipe of these old-time amateurs of the art was a fluty, insipid thing. THE bagpipe, the one the world knows today and the only one that counts, is the great Highland bagpipe. The Piob Mhor.

When Scota, the princess daughter of Pharoah, came over to Scotland—if she did—and her court piper first took his thin little chanter out of its bag, he started something that will, assuredly, have no end.

The Scots seized the bagpipe, enlarged it, refined it, gave it personality, and wrote it into musical history. It became so integral a part of the Scottish scene, character and history it might have sprung full-fledged from Highland soil.

Actually the eastern bagpipe had its rebirth, and what went before is nothing.

Why, when the brass band at the Melbourne Games struck up a Highland air as Big Geordie strode like a monarch onto the Olympic field—you could sense the whole theatre tingle.

Had it been the real thing, now, the Piob Mhor playing, every hair on every neck would have stood up and hurrahed. No?

Reports from Ottawa

ONE of the interesting overtones in the political cacophony is the way the Conservatives have closed ranks. You find Leon Balcer speaking for John Diefenbaker in Prince Albert, Sask., today, and Diefenbaker scheduling a meeting in Three Rivers, Que., today week to speak on behalf of candidate Balcer.

You find Donald Fleming hustling on the hustings right across the country, including Prince Albert; Davie Fulton on a speaking tour, and Earl Rowe, the epitome of the Tory Old Guard, not only seeking re-election himself but leaping into the fray in other Ontario ridings and in the west.

In December the gulf between Balcer and Diefenbaker looked unbridgeable. Fleming and Fulton quit Ottawa licking their wounds after Diefenbaker defeated them for the party leadership. Rowe, whose political star seemingly set with Diefenbaker's success in wresting control of the party from the Old Guard, had intended to retire from politics.

What happened to produce this united front? Old loyalties to the party? The excitement of the battle? Probably both of these considerations played a part. But more importantly, I suspect, out-of-joint Tory noses could have become in joint again merely from sniffing the political airs.

* * *

There is a strong preponderance of opinion that the breeze is blowing against the Liberals in the Maritimes, Ontario, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. There don't seem to be many who will wager even money that it will blow the Tories into power. But short of that, it may well re-establish the Conservatives in a position of strength on the opposition side of the Commons, with more seats than they have held since the 1930 election.

If Diefenbaker can achieve that result six months after taking over the party leadership, and against a Liberal leader as strong as if not stronger than either Laurier or Mackenzie King, two conclusions can be drawn.

One is that there will be no post-election dropping of the pilot amid recriminations and I-told-you-so's—and no opportunity for advancement within the party except as a Diefenbaker man.

The other is that, given reasonable luck with issues in the next four years, the Conservatives may have a better than even chance to win the 1961 election—by which time presumably the Liberals will have a new leader without Louis St. Laurent's unchallengeable appeal to French-Canadian voters.

There is also the possibility, which no longer seems remote as it did at the start of the campaign, that all three opposition parties plus independents may be able to muster more seats in the Commons than the Liberals. In that event anything could happen.

In these circumstances it is not surprising that the Old Guard and other malcontents in December are among the hardest workers in May for John Diefenbaker's election as prime minister.

* * *

There's an old saying that nobody can form a government without at least 30 seats in Quebec. By this criterion Diefenbaker will not be PM after June 10. But there are recurrent reports from within the province across the river that Diefenbaker is apt to end up with eight or so Quebec seats—twice as many as George Drew pulled out of Quebec in 1953.

If this happens, it will be largely because of support from the Union Nationale party of Premier Duplessis. But this help is being extended only in ridings where the Tory candidate is considered to have a chance, and where the local UN organization has reasons of its own to want to defeat the Liberal.

The Packsack

Modern Public Relations

By GREGORY CLARK

THREE public relations men were having lunch at the same table with me at the press club.

"What do you do," asked one, "when your boss is an anti-public relationist and a stinker?"

Not everybody who employs public relations men and supports a public relations department believes in public relations. Indeed, business and industrial organizations who need public relations men the most are often those who believe in it the least.

"When I started in public relations," said the oldest of the three at my table, "the work consisted largely of trying to get free publicity in the newspapers and keeping the boss' son's name out of the police court news. My entire staff consisted half the time of somebody else's stenographer.

"Today, I have 14 people on my staff, including three men and a smart young woman, all of whom are making twice as much salary as I made when I started. We are one of the busiest departments in the company. We are involved in personnel relations in the plant and offices. We have our finger in the sales department, following up every complaint, every goof. We do research for everybody. Newspapers and magazines come to us for fast information on subjects miles from our own product.

"We don't have to peddle to the newspapers any more. We have learned what the newspapers want, which is news; and we are on the eternal watch for anything, in our orbit or out of it, that is a news story. We provide trained and entertaining speakers for service clubs and all sorts of organizations. We vet every line of advertising copy, though it is done by experts for us. We write speeches for the management. Put all reports into live English; circulate bulletins, big and small, as fast as they are required, within and outside the company.

"But most of all, we get to know intimately every man and woman working in the company, and as many of all those hundreds who come in contact with the company, whether buyers or sellers, as we can. Public relations is an all-day, all-night job. Its Number One function is to be aware.

"What do you do," repeated the first man, "when your boss is an anti-public relationist and a stinker?"

"Come," replied the older man, "and work for me."

And I bet he will.

On the Record

Paying Taxes In America

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THIS column has commented only once on the budget debate or President Eisenhower's campaign to convince the American people that no substantial reductions are possible. In fact, we find the debate irrelevant.

The constant increase in the proportion of the national income taken by the government, together with inflation, is the result of our foreign and domestic policies. There is no way of checking high taxes and inflation except by changing the policies. But since no party and few individuals want to change the policies, nothing will happen except small cuts here and there.

* * *

As an individual citizen concerned with protecting, as far as possible, her own interests, I assume that the effective majority will continue to believe that peace demands the maintenance of military establishments of unprecedented size, costliness, and even more formidable weapons all over the globe to deter aggressors; that American survival demands unceasing injections of dollars to lift the living standards (and increase the populations) of hundreds of millions of people who have lived on the border of subsistence from time immemorial; and that American prosperity depends upon full employment at wages pegged to the cost of living, and a perpetual extension of the welfare state.

* * *

As an individual, I realize that the notions of thrift that governed my youth and enabled me (while it was still possible) to accumulate and invest a certain amount of savings from my earnings are no longer applicable in the present world. I used to assume, looking ahead to old age, that it was a good idea to have money, or tokens of money in the form of promises to pay with interest at a certain date, such as insurance policies and bonds. But as an observer of our government's foreign and domestic policies I long ago abandoned this old-fashioned notion.

Now, like everybody else, I consider every expenditure from the viewpoint of whether it is tax deductible; invest only in tangible things whose value rises in some proportion to the decrease in the value of money; and keep my earned income (much higher taxed than dividends or personal gains) within limits.

* * *

For I am perfectly conscious that my country, while fighting international communism and revolution, has undergone a financial, economic, and political revolution and will go on undergoing it. The socialistic sector of the American economy is represented in the federal, state, and municipal budgets. Government today is the greatest buyer of goods and services of all kinds for use both at home and abroad. I must help pay the bills regardless of what I think of the projects, or go to jail.

The costs for government rise because of inflation. Therefore the only profitable thing is to sell, also, to the government at cost-plus, which is what almost all of the great corporations of this country and their stock holders are doing.

* * *

As long as American productivity per worker rises (as it does) around 3 per cent per year, due entirely to the advance of technology, the problem is to get rid of surplus production. Our foreign policy is designed to do so. Nothing does so more effectively than defence, simply because no hard goods are so rapidly obsolescent.

It is, therefore, folly to take radical disarmament proposals very seriously or to anticipate any real relaxation of tensions. Under the new economics any complete relaxation of tensions would create a technological-economic catastrophe. Continued tension—the cold war—is the means by which the anticipated post-war slump has been avoided.

War, hot or cold, means full employment, high wages, high profits, ever-increasing technology, high taxes, inflation, and the welfare state to care for those who fall temporarily or permanently along the line. These all fit in together. They are modernity.

* * *

One casualty, of course (as in all wars), is language. This struggle, waged by every psychological and propaganda weapon, with history's most destructive military weapons held in reserve, is called "peace."

Letters to the Editor

Time Wasted

It seems to me that there is room for improvement in the timing of the opening (on occasion) of the Johnson Street bridge. This morning (May 28) the gates went down at 7.17 for the CNR car ferry, and were raised at 7.31. Fourteen minutes! But this is what exasperates! the first nine minutes of this time the car ferry was being backed around, preparatory to the run under the bridge.

Backing away from the bridge, if you please, while we in our cars were chewing our nails up to our elbows!

If someone can and will be good enough to explain the need for this, I'll be philosophical and accept the 14-minute routine. Otherwise, it's not a very good game of cricket for the motorist, and I shall continue to be disgruntled.

Suspension Forever

In extension of what Mrs. Lorna V. Dawkins had to say on reckless and ruthless drivers (May 23), I would suggest that hitherto it has been the many suffering on account of the few. That situation could be remedied by a reversal: let the law now take the next dozen offenders of the kind described and suspend them forever and forever, with no appeal for any reason whatsoever.

By the Golden Rule

May I through your paper congratulate the writer of "Dignity of the Throne." It expresses my own sentiments; it was the kind of letter which does one good to read, though they are few and far between.

Some of our leaders would like to do away with "Victoria Day." I hope it will always continue as it now includes our gracious Queen Elizabeth, a queen that we are all proud of.

I would like to see a member of our Royal Family permanently established in Canada; we would really feel that we were linked with Britain, and part of the dear old land. We have to wait years before we see our Queen because she is not invited; she loves Canada. There should be no strained relations between us. If we are true Canadians we would have some love for Britain; a good Britisher makes a good Canadian.

I enjoyed the letter written by Harry Langley. I understand his feeling for the "dear old land." I have been in Canada over 40 years and love it, but I never forget dear old England. There is coming a time when Britain will take her rightful place in the World.

I wish we had some statesmen like Sir Anthony Eden, who dares to do what is right for his country; we are glad to know he is in Canada. His head is screwed on the right way; what a pity he can't fill some position in Canada.

If we live up to the Golden Rule we would be at peace with the world. I was taught my first duty was to God, and next, to my country.

(Mrs.) LENA CLOWES.

Not Easy To Save

The subject of the old-age pensions is getting worn thin. There are many that need extra money; some that can get by and a few people who don't need it at all. Surely there must be some way to determine a person's needs.

It's too bad that after working 30 or 40 years these elderly citizens do not own the roof over their heads. This was not always possible where there was sickness and bad luck. But the average couple should try to buy their own home during their working years. Then later on in life at least they do not have to pay high rent.

It's not easy to save money, even today, when wages are high. It's so easy to buy everything on time with no money down. About the only way people can save money is by having it taken off their pay cheques.

Why can't the employment insurance and the saving for old age be one and the same thing? Many women work for years and then get married, and they never collect their unemployment insurance. Most men will work all their lives and never collect, either. Why can't these people get the benefit of this saving in their old age when they need it the most?

There will always be people who live for today and don't care about tomorrow. These people are always crying for help, and no matter what is done for them it will not be enough.

Civil Servants

No Plans So Far For Rally

Federal civil servants in Victoria have no plans at present for a protest meeting against lack of a definite government statement on salaries until after the federal election next month.

A. W. Parry, president of the Victoria District Council of the Civil Service Federation, said this yesterday when commenting on an Ottawa report that protest meetings are planned across Canada in six major cities, including Vancouver.

"We have signified that if a meeting is to be held, we will make the arrangements," he said, "but we have not done anything definite. We have not even made any arrangements for a hall."

Jack Carey, president of the B.C. National Defence Employees' Association, said he himself had received no notification about the mass meetings planned through the country.

"The situation is pretty raw," he added. "The bulk of the civil servants, some 130,000 of them, have been left out in the cold."

Commenting on raises granted to some members of the civil service, he said: "The laborer is as important in the civil service as the hug-chaser."

U.K. Planning Peace Missive

LONDON (AP)—Britain was reported Wednesday night preparing a new appeal to Russia to help slow down the world arms race—and so open the way for a wider settlement of world problems.

Government sources said Prime Minister Macmillan has drafted the main terms of a letter to Soviet Premier Bulganin which likely will hold out prospects for ultimate East - West talks at three levels.

The first might be a visit to Moscow by Macmillan himself either next fall or in the spring of 1958.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles appealed to Russia Wednesday for quick agreement on "a substantial inspection zone" as a starting point for an East - West disarmament agreement.

In order to move swiftly, he said, the United States is ready to agree with Moscow on "any area which is sufficiently free of political complications" as the site for any such first-step agreement.

"In this disarmament task," he said, "the important thing is to get going somewhere, somehow, just as rapidly as possible."

Engineer Objecting To Old Circle Plan

Ald. Elmer McEwen said yesterday he will ask city council to reconsider the plan for replacement of Fountain Circle submitted six years ago by former traffic planner Robert Doble.

But assistant city engineer Norman Worsley, the city's present chief traffic planner, immediately pointed to what he said were serious defects in the Doble plan.

Ald. McEwen said he thought the Doble plan would be found to "outshine" the two alternative plans for the intersection provided by consulting traffic engineer D. Jackson Faustman of Sacramento, and also that the changeover "would not cost more than a fraction of the $30,000 budgeted for the roundabout this year" and could be simply tried without demolishing the present circle.

With all these opinions, however, Mr. Worsley disagreed.

The Doble plan was to make separate thoroughfares of Douglas Street and Gorge-Government by closing the middle of the intersection. Connection between Gorge and Douglas would be by Garbally, and between Government and Douglas would be Bay, and Hillside traffic seeking to go farther west would have to use one of these streets.

Mr. Worsley said this plan would cause serious traffic tie-ups on Douglas at Bay and Garbally, would deprive Government Street of much of its present business, would cost almost as much to install as the others, and could not be tried properly without changes in the present circle and northern "island."

Premier Takes Off Gloves At Colorful Kelowna Rally

By PETER BRUTON
(Colonist Staff Reporter)

KELOWNA — Premier Bennett zoomed into high gear last night as he flayed and flogged other political parties in a razzle-dazzle election meeting attended by some 650 persons in his home town of Kelowna.

All but two men — one old, the other young — gave the premier a cheering applauding hearing as he hit the best form he has shown during the present campaign.

The meeting started off with a parade through the streets of Kelowna behind a pipe band, and election feeling rose to fever pitch as the premier took off the gloves and hit out at his political opponents.

FEARFUL OF MESSAGE

"In Eastern Canada the old line parties are fearful of the Social Credit message in this federal campaign," he told the audience.

"What we advocate will cost, to be frank about it, some $750,000,000 a year and it can be done without raising your taxes a single nickel.

"The things we've done provincially could be done one hundred fold if we were in Ottawa," the premier said as he was drowned out time and time again by thunderous applause.

Apart from defence what did the Liberals do for the country, he asked.

"They pay the Senate," someone called.

"That's right my friend, and that's the only place where the Liberals pay a proper old age pension," retorted the premier.

WORST PATRONAGE

The worst patronage anywhere was in the Liberal administration and "they should be kicked out of office," he continued. The Conservatives were just as bad.

The premier launched into a tirade against the other parties and said it was because of Social Credit's strength that the whole federal cabinet "came out in force to attack the Social Credit citadel."

More Liberals had joined Social Credit during the past six months, however than either Conservatives or CCF, he continued and invited people of all parties to join the movement.

"Don't be fooled by all this public relations work done for my good friend John Diefenbaker," said the premier. "Mr. Diefenbaker is a very fine man . . . a brilliant debater, a very fine criminal lawyer—he can sway audiences, he can sway juries—but just you read his speeches next day. Nobody knows where he stands."

MILLIONS LOST

There was waste and patronage everywhere in Canada, he said, and cited as an instance the sale of a drydock owned by the federal government in hospital operations and the cost of Prince Rupert for $25,000 when building them, the CCFer called it would cost about $2,500,000 on.

He hit out at the low increase given oldage pensioners and also at the economic troubles caused by the tight money policy.

"These economic problems must be solved and Social Credit and Social Credit alone can solve them," he said. "That's why I left the Tories and that's why people are leaving the Liberals, the Conservatives and the CCF."

The premier had trouble from only two men, one obviously a CCFer and the other a Conservative.

"Keep on heckling, my friends. I just love it!" they were told.

Once when he was talking about the black or in the red?"

"We're always in the black, the reds belong to other parties."

Arch of Ingenuity

Tourists usually stop and stare in wonder at this strange arch near Lausanne, Switzerland, apparently raised high without any significance. Arch is actually an ordinary water main set up in this unusual fashion because land beneath is unsteady and subject to slides, thus making it hazardous to entrench the pipe in the ground.—(CPC)

Yarrows Staffs Consider Strike

Some 65 office employees of Yarrows Ltd. will decide whether to ask for a government-supervised strike vote at a meeting at 7.30 tonight in Victoria Labor Council hall.

Step follows rejection of a conciliation board award by the company. The office workers, members of Office Employees' International Union, Local 15, last week accepted the board's recommendations.

T. R. Watt of Management Research (Western) Ltd., Vancouver, which represented Yarrows in negotiations, said management objected to a recommendation regarding union security and three weeks' holiday pay after 10 years' employment.

These were majority recommendations of board chairman Adam Bell and employees' nominee Everett King.

Unanimous recommendations of the board calling for a minimum 10-per-cent across-the-board wage increase, 37½-hour week, overtime provisions and nine statutory holidays were acceptable, he said.

In Milan, Italy, a wife sued for divorce because her husband built a wall through their apartment so he wouldn't have to look at her. The judge threw out the case, saying a man's domicile is a simple private affair as long as he doesn't disturb the neighbors.

'Rabbit' in Stew

LLANELLY, Wales (Reuters)—A court order has been granted that can evict "Tom the Rabbit"—so upset by the 1926 general strike that he vowed "never to work again"—from his home beneath the furnaces of a steel mill here.

Tom Wescott, called "the rabbit" by fellow Welshmen, was always cold. He solved his heating problem more than 30 years ago by moving into the maze of alleys that run under the cauldron-like blast furnaces.

Tom moved into the mill after he gave up his last job during the 1926 strike. He said: "The strike upset me. I vowed never to work again. Now it's too cold outside even in the summer."

The steel management told the court which granted the writ Tuesday that Tom was in grave danger of being burned by red-hot coals that rain down on his habitat from time to time.

An injunction first was served on him last month after a 10-day search through the alleys. But Tom refused to leave.

Now Tom faces a cold dungeon—if anybody will brave the red coals to find him.

Water Trustees To Be Chosen

Trustees for the recently-approved water improvement district in the Glen Lake, Happy Valley and Luxton areas will be nominated and elected at a public meeting at Luxton Hall Monday at 8 p.m.

The five trustees elected will be responsible for negotiating with the water rights department for improvement, to prevent flooding.

Giant Switch-Over

Log Cars Give Way To Diesels

FRANKLIN RIVER — Within the next few weeks the gigantic MacMillan and Bloedel operation, which stretches from Franklin River on the Alberni Inlet to Nitinat Lake, almost to the Pacific Ocean, will commence a tremendous and costly transformation.

It will involve replacement of the locomotives and log-carrying cars by a fleet of giant Rolls-Royce diesel trucks. This will involve millions of dollars.

James Trehett, youthful division manager of the operation, said yesterday the transportation of logs by trucks would reach areas previously inaccessible to railroads and in the long run will prove a more economical system.

SCRAPPING TRESTLES

More than 5,000 feet of railway trestle—which would have had to be replaced within next five years in any event—will be abandoned in favor of a short road haul with fewer than 500 feet of bridges.

A party of 75 M & B executives and guests, including press, radio and television representatives, toured the rail operations here—30 miles from Port Alberni yesterday.

The tour was probably the last public viewing of the old locomotives in operation.

By next fall the entire operation—about 130,000 acres—will have been converted to truck-logging.

The present rail-logging system involves four "locies," about 50 miles of winding, bumpy track, and a crew of about 50 men, including rail gangs and maintenance men.

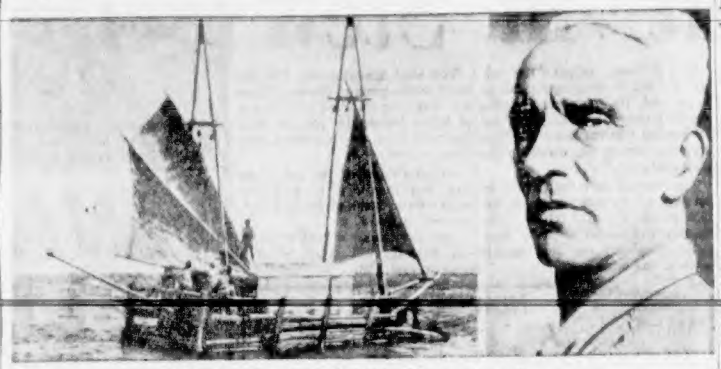
CREW ABSORBED

The crew already is being absorbed into other phases of the operation here. Some have been trained to drive trucks, some to take over truck repair and others to work in the woods.

In yesterday's demonstration faller Ted Richmond dropped a 190-foot Douglas Fir with precision accuracy into a 10-foot-wide lay. A 12-foot section at the top of the tree broke up on impact.

H. R. MacMillan, doubling as guide and interested observer throughout the trip, said: "I hated to see this tree fall."

The tree was between 400 and 500 years old.



Raft Sinks, Will Try Again

Undaunted by the fact that his Kon-Tiki-in-reverse adventure — Tahiti to Chile on a raft — ended in disaster, French scientist Eric de Bisschop, right, says he will try again. The Frenchman and his four colleagues were 900 miles short of their destination when their float sank in shark-infested South Pacific waters.

Ferry Crew Idle

Farmers Say Islanders Unworried by Sea Strike

PENDER ISLAND (CP) —The Pender Island Farmers' Institute informed Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi Tuesday that despite a strike of crew members on the ferry Lady Rose, the Gulf Islands "are not without good transportation."

The institute said spokesmen for the Galiano Development Association and Coast Ferries Ltd., operators of the Lady Rose, were not voicing the opinions of North and South Pender Island residents about the effect of the strike.

Captain Ivan Denroche, chairman of the development association, said in an interview earlier this week "the stoppage of our only sea link with the mainland at the start of the tourist season could put us in a very [illegible] situation."

The Farmers' Institute said the car ferry Cy Peck, operated by Gulf Islands Ferry Co. of Ganges, is making two trips each way daily between Swartz Bay and the Gulf Islands.

Residents of Galiano, Mayne, Saturna and the Pender Islands are able to drive to Victoria and return the same day, said W. L. Shirley, president of the institute.

The four crew members of the Lady Rose went on strike in Vancouver Saturday night to back demands for $1.50 an [illegible] and $1.52 for the one oiler retroactive to last June 1. All were getting $1.30 an hour. The company has accepted a conciliation board recommendation for $1.40 for the seamen and $1.42 for the oiler with another 10 cents beginning June 1.

Mail service to the islands is being maintained by speedboat.

Victoria Lacking Mountie Symbol

DUNCAN—Where is the Mountie in the scarlet coat, the yellow-striped trousers and the Stetson hat — the famous symbol of Canada used so widely on advertising material, post cards and literature of all kinds sent out of Canada?

General membership meeting of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce discussed the question Monday, and a motion was passed asking that a scarlet-clad Mountie should be on duty at all times in Victoria, particularly at the legislative buildings.

The motion also asked that consideration be given to having Mounties in dress uniform evident everywhere in B.C. during 1958, centennial year.

Driver In Coma 11 Days

COURTENAY (CP) — Lyle Manser, 25, of Campbell River, was still semi-conscious in a Comox hospital last night, 11 days after his car and a truck collided two miles north of Courtenay.

Three Victoria persons riding in the truck have been released from hospital.

Sioux Going East

The navy announced yesterday that the destroyer HMCS Sioux will join the Atlantic Command, sailing for Halifax Sunday from Esquimalt, where extensive refit is being completed.

Based on the west coast for 12 years following the Second World War, Sioux was one of the Canadian destroyer group assigned to UN forces in Korean waters. She served three tours of duty in the war zone.

Sioux's place in the Second Escort Squadron will be taken by the modern destroyer escort, HMCS Skeena, already in service.

The navy also announced that 87 Regular Officer Training Plan cadets now at Royal Roads will board the cruiser Ontario and destroyers Cayuga and Athabaskan June 12 for a two-months training cruise with ports-of-call at San Francisco, Honolulu, Long Beach, Santa Barbara and Santa Monica. They return August. 9.

The two destroyers are slated to return from exercises with the U.S. Navy Sunday at 10 a.m., instead of Tuesday as previously announced.

U.S. Help Praised

Missing Fliers' Relatives Back

Back from a week-long search for a missing Duncan family in Washington's rugged Cascade Mountains, relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hall were loud in praise of the co-operation they received on all sides.

The Walls, with their eight-year-old son Glen, disappeared during a flight from Ellensburg to Everett while on their way home to Duncan in a small plane.

More than 100 planes, and ground parties, took advantage of all good weather in an intensive but vain search for the aircraft.

Bill Thompson brother of Mrs. Wall, was spokesman for the group which spent five days searching.

With him were Mrs. C. Phoenix, Duncan, his mother; John Larsen, Duncan, Thompson's brother-in-law, and Ben Ruff, Chemainus, a close friend.

"Everyone was wonderful," said Mr. Thompson.

"People of Lester, headquarters for the search, were hospitality itself," he said. He also praised the help of the Civil Air Patrol, the Northern Pacific Railway, sheriff's office, Washington State Aeronautic Board and private flyers.

Mr. Thompson said he had learned that the district in which the Walls' plane vanished was something of an aerial "graveyard."

Of 147 crashes recorded in the state of Washington, 27 were in the vicinity of Stampede Pass, and of these 12 had never been found.

A series of colored slides entitled "To Europe With the Gospel" will be shown by Rev. R. E. S. Toms at Evangelistic Temple, Blanshard and Queens, at 8 p.m. Friday.

Cuban Riots Kill 35

HAVANA, Wednesday (UP) — Clashes between government forces and rebels yesterday in terror-ridden Cuba killed at least 35 persons, including the leader of last week's "amphibious invasion" of Oriente province, it was reported today.

Heaviest casualties occurred just outside the eastern town of Holquin, where the army said 16 rebels were killed, including Calixto Sanchez, leader of the rebel force that landed 40 miles south-east of the city Friday.

Sanchez, who served in the U.S. army during the Second World War, became secretary of the Cuban Airport Workers' Union after the war. He fled to Miami earlier this year after being accused of complicity in a rebel attack on th presidential palace.

Other incidents reported today in the rebel campaign of "creeping terror" included the derailment of a train near Matanzas.

Sharp Rally Confuses The Experts

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks advanced over a broad front in increased volume.

The industrial department erased about 60 per cent of the losses of the two previous sessions this week.

Rising prices fooled the experts who had anticipated a dull, narrow-moving pre-holiday market.

A surprise boost in the posted price of crude oil in the Middle East touched off a sharp rise in oil shares. The buying spread to other sections of the list including the recently heavy aircrafts. Even the rails managed to post a small advance.

Gains in the aircrafts ranged to more than a point at their highs. Steels rose fractions to more than a point. Lukens Steel at its best was up more than 2 points. Shipbuilding issues, some metals, and utility issues ruled strong.

Pipelines Advance

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges closed in an irregularly mixed tone Wednesday, recovering slightly from losses of the two previous days.

Steels moved higher. Algoma took the lead, pulling 2¾ higher to continue its string of strong advances. At close, Algoma rested at 149¾. Steel of Canada moved 1¼ higher at 71½ and half-point gains were made by Atlas at 26½ and Dominion at 23.

Base metals showed well early in the day but slipped slightly downward in later trading. Aluminium was up a point at 43½, while Canadian British Aluminum fell a point at 17.

Oils moved strongly, with McColl being a lone exception, losing 1¾ at 76. BA led with 1¼ at 56½ and Imperial followed with a one-point gain at 59⅝. Husky was up ⅛ at 21 and Canadian was ahead ¼ at 35¼.

Pipe line issues were sprightly. Trans Mountain, at one time up 5½, closed at 125, up 2½. Interprovincial gained 1¼ at 60½.

In carriers, CPR was up ⅜ at 33⅞.

Algoma Adds Point

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market recovered all of Tuesday's lost ground Wednesday as it recorded its strongest general advance in a month.

Algoma Steel added a point at 149, trading ex-dividend, and B-A Oil, under the same circumstances, added ⅝ at 56½.

Trans Mountain Pipe Line was ahead 2½ points at 124.

Most senior base metals recorded major fractional gains.

Western oils recorded some of the best gains on the board. Trans-Empire climbed 38 cents to a new high of $3.50 and Provo Gas and Britalta each gained 20 cents. Calgary and Edmonton led senior issues with a 1½-point rise to 32½.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices showed considerable irregularity and easiness in moderately active trade.

Hesitation in U.S. markets and lack of aggressive export buying was reflected in the trading.

There were some exports of flax with parcel lots going to the United Kingdom and the Continent. Flax trading was fairly active with occasional orders by export and American interests.

Elevator offerings were liberal and flax prices reached a new seasonal low.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices held within a narrow range although the trend was on the downside during most of the day.

Early selling in wheat was due to favorable weather in most areas and reports of more U.S. government sales to exporters. However, there were rallies due to reports of extremely heavy rain in parts of Kansas overnight, and prices moved upward a bit.

A second two-level bus for urban service was added yesterday to the C.A.C. fleet.

The 37-passenger vehicle, a Vistaliner with William Gee as driver and company chief mechanic Douglas Martin, left Victoria at noon after a delivery from the factory at Lansdale, Ohio.

More satellite buses are on order for here in the year.

Nanaimo goaltender Alf Shuker was a big stumbling-block as far as Victoria Shamrocks were concerned in last night's Inter-City Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena. Injury-Riddled Nanaimo Club Fights Off Shamrocks, 17-16

It was unbelievable!

That's about the best way to describe last night's [illegible] game at Memorial Arena where almost 2,500 Victoria fans watched in disbelief as the Shamrocks went down to their first home defeat of the season.

And as might be expected from past performances it was the Cowichan Valley [illegible] who turned Timbermen from the [illegible] and sending [illegible] to the first quarter.

Fearsome Batting Strength

Powerful West Indies Meets England Today

By ED SIMON

LONDON (CP) — A West Indies side [illegible] tackles an England eleven with more outstanding [illegible] two countries take the field in the first of [illegible]

The West Indies [illegible] powerful cricket since it upset England here [illegible] [illegible] W. Clyde Walcott, Everton Weekes, Sir Frank Worrell and Everton Weekes [illegible] have made life miserable for [illegible] international bowlers for seven years.

Together with Garry Sobers, a 20-year-old newcomer and [illegible] Collie Smith, they [illegible] pummelled their way [illegible] record and [illegible] against [illegible] against [illegible] test series in England [illegible]

A big gamble is that of [illegible] Yorkshire [illegible] second Brian Close of Yorkshire as an opening batsman. By contrast, England is so loaded with bowling talent that several men of county [illegible] [illegible] calibre have been passed over. At [illegible] one of the bowlers among the 13 men chosen for the first test will have to stand down in favor of additional batting talent.

Surrey's Tony Lock, current leader in the county bowling averages and a [illegible] left-hander, as well as [illegible] Lancashire fast bowler Brian Statham, and Yorkshire's Johnny Wardle.

But Jim Laker, who captured 19 Australian wickets in a single match last season, may be [illegible] for additional batting strength. If he is dropped a share of the bowling duties will fall on Close and Raman.

Board Raps Courtenay Assessments

COURTENAY (CP)—An assessment appeal board in Victoria says Courtenay's 1957 assessment level on residences is "definitely irregular" and should be re-assessed.

The bombshell was dropped in a reassessment within the city" a judgment rendered Tuesday in the case of William E. Mantle who successfully appealed costs in assessment case on two city lots he owns.

An assessor himself employed by the provincial government Mr. Mantle at his hearing April 18 produced a map showing distribution of assessment.

A close study of that map when combined with an extensive view of the lands referred to indicates a substantial inconsistency in assessment sufficient to justify

May Join Tour

Prime Sgt. Thornlake and her husband Sir Lewis cresset are being sent to tour Canada with the Canadian Players of Stratford next year. The Daily Colonist learned yesterday.

Lord designate Ann cresset and her husband Douglas Compton, appeared in Victoria during the past season. Lewis and Lewis are appearing in the play "The Potting Shed" on New York while the 1958 tour is under way.

a reassessment of land values says the report of the three-man appeal board headed by K. M. Beckett.

Mr. Mantle appealed city assessor Sidney Godwin's increased assessment on two lots from $200 and $400 to $500 and $700 respectively. The second lot was reduced to $600 later by a court of revision.

The board directed the city assessor to restore Mr. Mantle's assessments to their 1956 level and granted him costs of the appeal.

Many Courtenay home owners experienced a marked increase in assessments this year as the city began its revision under the province-wide reorganization of assessments scheme for school taxation purposes.

The board says "It may be having regard to actual market value the lands under appeal are not assessed but, having regard to the areas of greater size assessed on a lower basis the board is of the opinion that property within the city should prevail."

The board's view is that a substantial readjustment of assessments is required.

Bridge Delay Seen

A six-week delay in construction of the new Point Ellice bridge is now anticipated, Mayor Percy Scurrah said yesterday, because of a shortage of a small amount of essential special steel.

Mayor Scurrah said the steelwork contractor, Dominion Bridge Ltd. had advised the city that nondelivery of the special steel for welded girders would delay the start of construction that long.

City Engineer James Garnett and the bridge designer A. R. Sanderson went to Vancouver yesterday to see if there was any way in which delivery could be hastened.

MORE DELAYS

Mayor Scurrah said he regarded the delay as serious because, through extending construction past mid-October into the bad weather season, it might result in further delays.

Swiftsure Spit, Polish

Facilities Shock Chamber Members

The university sub-committee of Victoria Chamber of Commerce has informed the Victoria College council that it will throw its full weight behind the council's attempts to secure full university status for Victoria at the earliest possible date.

The chamber committee, however, was not satisfied that the 34.5 acres of land adjoining the present college which has just been purchased by the provincial government is sufficient to meet the longer-term program for the college.

Would Be Condemned

In the main building committee members were told that the auditorium was so poor acoustically that it was impossible even to stage the annual college plays there. As a lecture hall it also had considerable deficiencies.

Without exception the committee, as businessmen, thought that it would be more economical in the long run to scrap the building completely rather than try to modernize it.

Old Army Huts

This was completed only four years ago as a memorial to the late principal of the college.

Although designed for a library, it was found to be absolutely inadequate in space for the purpose as soon as it was built.

Junk Drive Flops

The Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce scrap-iron drive, meant to raise financial backing for the $10,000 mass swim later this year, has fallen flat because Jaycee members won't co-operate, they were told last night.

Jaycees Choose Officers

Ira Hill, 3690 McIvor, an executive of T. Eaton Co. Ltd. here, last night was elected by acclamation president of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Ray Rawnsley, 2650 Dunlevy, and Victor Smith, 847 Carrie, were also acclamation elected vice-presidents.

Don Blair, 85 Burnside Road West, was elected secretary and Bill Deeson, 1152 Princess, was elected treasurer, both by acclamation.

Victoria Teachers Elect President

Cary Gonyon, a social studies instructor at Victoria High School, was elected president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association Wednesday night. New vice-president is Walter Bowes, science teacher at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Well on the Way

This view, however, was not generally held, and the Chamber of Commerce sub-committee was informed that the council, by persuading the B.C. government to purchase an additional 34.5 acres of land adjacent to the college, as indeed preparing for the day when the third and fourth year courses would be added to the curriculum.

Might Not Be Time

Despite this difficulty, however, the chamber committee and the Victoria College council agreed upon a more embracing site than is at present available, and work will take place without delay to see if the extra land can be obtained.

Rich Tourist Market Right at Doorstep

A rich internal tourist market in Canada is being overlooked, John Fisher, executive director of the Canadian Tourist Association, said yesterday in Victoria.

As an example, he said, 60 per cent of residents of the lower mainland had never visited Vancouver Island.

Mr. Fisher spoke to a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Club as moderator in a panel discussion of tourism.

"We need to pull up our socks in this country," Mr. Fisher said. The tourist "deficit" increased by a third last year, rising to $162,000,000, meaning that Canadians had spent that much more outside the country than incoming tourists had spent in Canada.

He called for increased efforts to bring Americans to Canada and to keep them in Canada longer, but he said another way to reduce the deficit was to encourage more travel in Canada by Canadians.

Encouraging travel within Canada would have a second beneficial effect, he said:

"We have a problem in Canadian unity, and travel is the magic key."

What's Cooking!

Halibut Is Good Buy Now

Because today is Friday, the last day of the month and the first week-end in May, and a very special day, I talk about fish today. I was down on your behalf to my wonderfully helpful fish dealer who keeps me up to the minute on what to buy and why. In fact he was the one who told me that halibut is the fish for us just now, guess. It is absolutely at its best but the season is short so we would be wise to make the most of it. He was telling me that this present "open" season for halibut, while expected to last several weeks, could become closed any time.

The reason? Well apparently each distant from Hecate Rock down is only allowed to catch a certain number of pounds. And when the quota is caught so to speak it becomes a closed season.

From my priceless dictionary of food I gleaned this information which I thought might amuse you . . . "the male halibut seldom weighs more than fifty pounds but the female has been known to exceed seven hundred. these very big fish are not especially desirable as their flesh is over coarse. A fat female of about seventy five pounds is considered by connoisseurs to be the most savory. The general preference is for still younger fish —"chicken halibut."

These latter average only five to ten pounds.

Now for the cooking of it. While halibut can simply be baked or steamed and served with a parsley or egg sauce I'm passionate about a poached piece so that some of you may feel inclined to use it I'm keeping for you other ingredients. My cookbook, the Canada's Department of Fisheries suggest the following which is an old time puffy fish pudding brought up to date.

HALIBUT MOUSSE

Two pounds fresh halibut, 3 egg whites, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains nutmeg, ½ pint whipping cream. Remove skin and bone from halibut and put through fine grinder.

Chop finely with a sharp knife and pound with a potato masher to make smooth. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into the fish. Add seasonings. Stir in cream gradually, until completely absorbed. Pour mixture into a greased 1½ quart casserole and

Centenary Recalls 'Year of Decision'

"The year of decision for British Columbia—1858—was described by Willard Ireland provincial archivist at a luncheon in a talk at the annual meeting of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon.

In explaining the choice of that year for centennial celebrations throughout the province Mr. Ireland told of momentous events in 1858 which changed the course of British Columbia history.

"On Nov. 19, 1858, the colony of British Columbia was born at Fort Langley, marking the first time the future of British Territory west of the mountains was visualized. Then the gold rush of 1858 lead to a series of circumstances that shaped the future of the province."

Although the crown colony of Vancouver Island was 11 years old it was growing very slowly especially in comparison to the American territories to the south which were being flooded with settlers. Mr. Ireland pointed out.

Governor Douglas saw the need for more people but it was difficult to attract settlers to a forlorn little colony which in the spring of 1858 numbered only 450 white persons (6 of whom had left Victoria).

But by the fall of that same year things had changed with the hush of Californians touched with "Fraser River Fever." Over 10,000 came in six months, and one San Francisco paper was worried enough to write that 'San Franciscos days are numbered because everyone is going to British Columbia.'

It was also the year of transition. The old fur trade economy gave place to a new industrial economy because the gold rush brought the people needed to develop the country. Miners had to be fed so more farmers had to be brought in. Roads had to be built.

These miners saw parts of the country for the first time and some of them realized the tremendous potential wealth in minerals, agriculture, fish and timber. The future unfolded.

And in 1858 the stakes of British Columbia hung in the balance as the hordes of newcomers threatened to swamp and take over the territory from the handful of British settlers.

For all these reasons Mr. Ireland expressed the certainty that centennial celebrations this year commemorate decided that 1858, the year that shaped the future of British Columbia, was a year to remember with pride. He urged that all citizens participate throughout the province.

Fashion Show Stars Unorthodox Models

By SYLVIA HACK

LONDON (CP) — How figure consciousness ate Britons' appetites for unusual fashions was demonstrated at their own figure feasts.

In an attempt to show what shapely ladies ought to look like, the Wool Secretariat staged a fashion show in London geared to hide or refining or disguising the figure.

First came a three-piece suit in [illegible] tweed. The jacket [illegible] hemline and [illegible] see-through for those slips of [illegible] and flowing skirts. The tweed [illegible] the trousers have a side zip for expansion after a good meal.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

Comedian Sid Caesar and former NBC president Pat Weaver have announced a new business association which will start by using Caesar's talents in "a unique adaptation of TV techniques for motion picture theatres."

There are no details, but it's known that Caesar has the movie, TV and stage rights to a forthcoming novel. Weaver presently is lining up a network of independent TV stations in the bigger U.S. cities.

The ex-NBC boss said this independent network, now an eight-city affair is at present only a daytime operation, when it goes to nighttime in a few years Caesar would have a major show.

★ ★ ★

Jack Benny's final Shower of Stars Miriam Hopkins on Climax' and U.S. Memorial Day services on channel 13 are highlights today. Good movies are "Caesar and Cleopatra," "Pickwick Papers," "Cluny Brown" and, of all things, "A Christmas Carol."

★ ★ ★

By the end of the year, all the three major TV networks will be available to 85 per cent of U.S. viewers. The figure comes from ABC president Leonard Goldenson, who disclosed that ABC recently added stations in St. Louis and San Antonio and this year will also move to Omaha, Boston, Miami, Fort Wayne, Norfolk, New Orleans and Pittsburgh.

★ ★ ★

TV BITS: Chicago TV stations originators of bowling shows are working on championship billiards and ping pong . . . When Chicago's last wrestling show died less than a dozen people griped.

A big bunch of proposed new shows this week: Producer Harry Ackerman plans Favorite Son, The Sky's The Limit, Talk About a Girl, In The Best of Families, The World Is My Beat and Fremont the Trailblazer . . . Hal Roach plans Pulitzer Prize Playhouse, Ben Blue's Brother, Guns of Destiny (Ralph Bellamy) . . . ABC is looking at What Makes You Tick? (Keefe Brasselle) and Lucky Lady (Dennis James) . . . Warner's has A Lady Comes To Texas . . . CBS still is trying to build a one-hour "game" show around Herb Shriner . . . Others are Europe Confidential, Fire Fighters and El Coyote Rides (Wild Bill Elliott).

"His category is 'Television Commercials'."

SHOULD HAVE READ THE
WANT-ADS
FIRST!

The route of an uninformed job-hunter, home-seeker or shopper of any kind is long and wearisome. More times than not it means a waste of time, effort, energy and shoe leather.

WHY START OUT UNINFORMED? Only a few minutes spent reading the Want-Ads in the local daily paper will most likely give you the very information necessary to bring a QUICK solution to your "wanted" problem — whether you want a job, a new home, some needed item or service, or even information concerning your lost pet.

The Want-Ad reading habit has saved the soles of many a pair of shoes —not to mention nerves, energy, time and money!

THE DAILY COLONIST

Hit by Lightning

When Norman Buffam of Carleton Place, Ont., returned home from a fishing trip, he found his wife in hospital with a broken ankle and his home wrecked. What happened to the Buffam home was a one-in-a-million chance—a lightning flash struck the house causing the second floor to collapse onto the first. Mrs. Buffam, in bed on the second floor, had her fall into the living room cushioned by the mattress.—(CPC)

They Like Them Sleek and Low

Comfort in an automobile is no longer the top selling point in the car industry, according to R. W. Todgham, recently-elected president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada.

During a visit to Victoria Tuesday, the Chrysler chief said first places in the customer's requirements today were style, power, length and color. Comfort came next.

He admitted the present long, low-slung cars brought complaints from tall persons.

"But the majority want their cars low and sleeky—that's why we brought in our 'forward look'," he said.

Chrysler until 1953 had persisted with the idea that comfort came first, offering cars with plenty of headroom, flat floors and maximum carrying capacity.

"But the public didn't like them, so we had to change our ideas."

Mr. Todgham said he believed the maximum in length had now been reached. He also thought the piston engine was about as good as it could be made, and that the next big automobile revolution might be the gas turbine engine.

"We have had great success with our turbine experiments at Chrysler," he said. "The main trouble is to find a metal which will efficiently and economically resist the tremendous heats to which it will be subjected."

Even further ahead are the nuclear and solar ray cars, which Mr. Todgham said might become necessary when the world's oil reserves begin to run short in 40 or 50 years.

Seven-Mile Gap

Island Road Link Nearly Completed

Building of the seven-mile gap, all that is required to complete a road from Campbell River on the east coast to Muchalat Arm on the west coast, can be expected any time now, Maj. George Nicholson told Victoria North Kiwanis Club this week.

Elk River Timber Company now has a camp at the head of the Elk River valley, near Summit Lakes, he said. One lake flows into Heber Creek, a tributary of Gold River; the other drains into Elk River, which in turn flows into Campbell River, he added.

Upper Campbell Lake, 43 miles from Campbell River settlement. This is more than two-thirds the distance between tidewater on the east coast and tidewater on the west coast, Maj. Nicholson said.

The Tahsis Company, which operates a camp on Gold River, already has a road in the Heber Creek area to within seven miles of the Elk River Timber Company's road, he said.

The gap in between runs, he said, is through good road-building country. The B.C. Power Commission has already made plans to divert the upper reaches of Heber Creek, so that it will drain into Elk River instead of Gold River.

All that is holding up this work is the question of which logging company will clear the right-of-way and build the necessary bridges. A decision is expected any time now and this road will complete the gap, Maj. Nicholson explained.

As the Elk River Timber Company and the Tahsis Company will own 95 per cent of the road, until the government comes to an agreement with these two logging companies, it will be a private road, he said.

Harry Hume

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Harry Hume, 79, of 1242 Craigflower, who died Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

A week ago Mr. Hume fought and extinguished a fire which broke out in the dining room of his home while he was asleep.

Mr. Hume suffered slight burns and shock in the fire, but it is not believed this had a direct bearing on his death. At the time of the fire Mrs. Hume was in hospital for a minor eye operation.

Mental Attitude

Victoria CCF candidate Victor Williams yesterday accused his Social Credit rival Waldo Skillings of a "mental attitude" of racial discrimination against the Chinese.

His accusation was prompted by refusal of Mr. Skillings at the Social Credit rally Friday to join in a public debate with the words, "I haven't time to debate a question with a man who hasn't a Chinaman's chance of being elected."

Narrows Bridge Work Halted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Work on Second Narrows bridge across Burrard Inlet has been halted by a dispute between two unions over which should lay beams at the northern approach. About 300 men have been affected.

An official of the International Association of Bridge Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers said members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners walked off the job in protest over the ironworkers being employed at laying the pre-stressed concrete beams.

Geraniums Love Heat

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Yesterday we were discussing problem flower beds out around the front of the house, and what kind of plants to buy for furnishing them. If your house faces south, with a real hot, dry, sunbaked flower bed in the front, you could do a lot worse than to take a tip from our sturdy pioneer ancestors and plant it up with a bold mass of old-fashioned scarlet geraniums.

These plants are real heat-lovers, and will revel in conditions which would sizzle the juices out of such plants as stocks and snapdragons.

Geraniums are rather expensive to buy, at least, if you need any great quantity of them to make a show—and they'll probably set you back somewhere around 75 cents each for good, stocky specimens all ready to bloom.

If you're a smart gardener, though, you can keep them alive in the basement through the winter, and you won't have to buy any more next spring.

In other words, although the first cost may be high to buy enough geraniums to plant up a big bed, the first cost can be the last cost, because you can take cuttings from your plants, root them to make more plants, and keep going indefinitely on your original investment.

There are two things to watch out for in planting geraniums out of doors. First, don't set them into the ground straight up and down as they were in their flower pots, but put them in on the slant, and cut off the top inch of each plant as you set it in.

If you put them in standing straight up, you get one truss of flowers on the top of the plant, and that's all, but if you set them in on the slant and chop their heads off, you'll get a flowering shoot growing straight up from each joint or knuckle in the stem, and you'll have as many as five blooms on each plant rather than only one.

The second thing to watch is to make the soil very firm around each plant, treading it down with your feet or using your knuckles to pack the soil down hard.

If the soil is loose, your plants will grow tremendously, but they'll be all leaves and no flowers. But if you pack the dirt down hard around each stem, they make shorter, sturdier plants which won't get blown over in the wind, and they will have far more flowers on them.

A very good edging plant to put up a pretty contrasting border around a bed of scarlet geraniums is ageratum, especially an ageratum called King of the Blues. This is a nice, dwarf little plant—a refreshing change from sweet alyssum or lobelia—and you can use it to put a ribbon of clear, deep blue around your brilliant red geraniums.

If you would like to produce a rather exotic, tropical effect in your south-facing flower bed, a good stunt is to set out one single plant of Dracaena in the exact centre of your geranium bed. Most greenhouse operators sell this plant, and it looks something like a small palm tree, very effective along with the tropical flowers of the geranium.

This combination is very good, too, for planting up those concrete urns or tubs in the garden—a Dracaena plant in the middle, with a few geranium plants around it, and a few bits of trailing lobelia to hang down over the sides.

The Viewing World — By John Crosby

Creeping Mediocrity

In accepting the Albert Einstein Commemorative Award the other day, Edward R. Murrow spoke some trenchant truths. Speaking of the enormous power wielded by a comparative handful of people in network and television, he said: "There is a disposition to take us for what we are, and that in turn is likely to keep us where we are. If these devices are to be used in an effort to entertain all of the people all of the time, then we have come perilously close to discovering the real opiate of the people."

* * *

These words are particularly true now with the cancellation of the Sid Caesar show, with the cancellation of "Home" which at least tried to provide a public service, with the rise of the western, and the continued strong hold of the situation comedy.

No doubt about it, there is a levelling off of the quality show which aspires to something higher than to "entertain all the people all the time."

* * *

Sid Caesar is an entertainer but he is also a social thinker and his comedy has germs of truth in it that make him a genuine cultural force. An hour of Dinah Shore or Perry Como, pleasant as they frequently are, is not the same thing.

A half-hour of Arlene Francis emceeing a variety show is not the same thing as Arlene Francis and her staff demonstrating cooking, decoration, gardening, interviewing people in the arts and in general trying to contribute a modicum of knowledge.

* * *

There is no escaping the fact that the type of show which is a soporific—that is, the kind of show which doesn't engage you very deeply either emotionally or intellectually or critically—is gaining ground at the expense of shows that demanded your full attention. Laurence Welk, the very epitome of the word mildness, is the symbol of the hour.

* * *

Chief villian in all this is that old bugaboo cost-per-thousand. The advertiser is unwilling to pay more than a certain price to reach 1,000 people. Competition has fragmentized the available audience so that no one gets the lion's share. This is distressing to those of us who have clung to the belief that competition would spur everyone to higher endeavor and greater achievements. It hasn't worked out that way.

Holden Can Write Own Ticket

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Warners are after William Holden to star in "Marjorie Morningstar" with Natalie Wood. He can write his own ticket and maybe he will—if he isn't too tired from his "Bridge Over the River Kwai."

When Anita Ekberg and husband Anthony Steele want to converse in private in public, they use deaf and dumb sign language. It should be easier to whisper.

* * *

Isn't the upcoming play on Broadway, starring Ann Todd, about a Barbara Hutton-type heiress?

Hugh O'Brian, TV's "Wyatt Earp," is outdrawing Elvis Presley in certain areas, and his comic books now outsell Gene Autry and Roy Rogers.

* * *

Sylvia Sidney is beaming. Her 17-year-old son Jody Adler—his father is Luther Adler—was accepted by Massachusetts Institute of Technology — the only boy in his class to be chosen by the school.

* * *

Sir Laurence Olivier is terrific as Titus Andronicus in the Shakespeare tragedy in Paris. He looks about 100 years old with the fantastic make-up. Wife Vivien Leigh also brought down the house.

* * *

Move over, Eddie Cantor, Chico Marx, now 66, is drawing his $80-a-month unemployment social security. Chico is the eldest of the brothers. Groucho is 61, Harpo 63.

Jose Ferrer is having problems with his Captain Dreyfus film. The French government will not co-operate. So the film is being made in Brussels. Reason for the French turndown: "The picture is not in the interest of national defence."

* * *

Quoting Henry Fonda, in London: "I cannot stomach Hollywood. Hollywood is a sterile community, even with so many 40-inch busts around." Not apropos, but Henry's first independent picture, "12 Angry Men," isn't doing the business expected.

* * *

Jane Russell, a blonde in her latest movie, "Fuzzy Pink Nightgown," is glad to be a brunette again. "I just don't feel like a blonde. You get more whistles from men as a blonde, but they take you more seriously when you're a brunette."

This deal is from a new book, published today, "Better Bridge For You," by Adolf Rush (Pageant Press, $3). Mr. Rush's "system" differs in many major respects from the methods generally followed elsewhere than in his Village Bridge Club in New York City. For example, jump bids are not forcing but are in the nature of sign-offs. After a one-over-one response, a rebid of one no-trump is a waiting bid which responder may not pass, but after a two-over-one response a rebid of two no-trump is weak rather than strong. It is not possible to do justice to a discussion of the merits or demerits of the Rush methods, except to say that they are too revolutionary to gain quick acceptance.

In keeping with his non-orthodoxy, Rush's book begins with a discussion of declarer's play, so the bidding shown here is supplied by us. The contract is a conservative one. In fact, with good breaks, declarer might make a slam. But if he does not prepare for bad breaks he will not even make his game.

Suppose that declarer wins the first trick and leads a heart. The opponents will prevent ruffing a heart in dummy by leading a second trump and the bad breaks in trumps will prevent declarer from running the diamonds and getting rid of heart losers. West will gain the lead in time to cash two more heart tricks and declarer will lose one trump and three heart tricks.

The winning play is to duck the first spade lead. By surrendering the trump trick while dummy still has a trump to stop the heart suit, declarer limits the defence to one trump and one heart trick. This safety play gives up a trick unnecessarily in three out of every four hands, for a 4-1 division of five outstanding trumps occurs only 28 times in 100. But by yielding 30 points on three occasions, declarer saves 470 or 720 when the cards are distributed as they happened to be in today's hand.

WINNING POINTS

An early surrender of a trick you can afford to lose is usually a good investment.
